A REGIMENT OF BRIGADIERS .- One of the most felicitous ideas of the lamented Artemus Ward was the raising of a regiment to be composed entirely of brigadier-generals. THE NEWEST SWINDLE.

MOCK-AUCTION HORSE AND CARRIAGE SALES-WORTHLESS ANIMALS SOLD AS CELEBRATED TROTTERS-BOGUS PEDI-GREES GIVEN-PROMINENT CITIZENS WHOSE NAMES HAVE BEEN FRAUDU-LENTLY USED-DEVICES TO ATTRACT PURCHASERS.

[New York Times.] The large number of strangers in the city has stimulated the mock-auction horse sales, and there are nine now in full blast, the sales being carried on nearly every day. They advertise extensively, and use numerous devices to attract purchasers. A fa-vorite method is the use of the names of prominent persons either deceased or bankrupt as the owners of the property. Among the names recently used were those of Henry Clews, Daniel Drew, Jay Gould, J. B. Doremus, Walter Garner, W. H. Aspinwall, Lester J. Astor, George A. Sherman, James E. Howland, W. E. Roosevelt, James A. Peckham, J. W. Traphagan, M. Stadler, James L. Montetth, J. W. Grinnell, and G. H. Jerome. To make the notice appear genuine they always wind up either with the name of an assignee or executor, which is, of course, fictitious. The assignee of Henry Clews was given as D. Gilbert Belmont, Daniel Drew's as H. O. Kennard, J. B. Doremus's as Charles R. Darling. The sales are invariably advertised to take place in the private stable of either the deceased or the bankrupt. These stables are located in fashionable neighborhoods, are kept in excellent order, and have every appearance of being the stables of wealthy gentlemen. The principal ones where the swindling sales take place are lo-cated as follows: No. 115 east Twentysecond street, a few doors from St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church; No. 8 west Thirtieth street, four doors from Fifth avenue; No. 57 east Thirty-third street; No. 24 east Seventeenth street, in the rear of Daniel dead until the last day, when there will be a Drew's mansion; Nos. 11 and 13 west Twenty-seventh street: No. 112 east Twenty-seventh street; No. 31 east Twelfth street, and at the corner of Lafayette place and Fourth street. The auctioneers are Charles C. Duff, W. B. Nelson, G. W. Jenkins, and William Borst. The auctioneers are by law compelled to place their names at the head of the advertisement of sale, but terday morning by the administration of this is violated every day, and it is only octhe communion, the members each break- casionally that their names appear at all, and then they are in a position where they are

Bogus pedigrees are given, and the same description is used for different horses at various stables. The very fast trotting-horse the first address, which was upon the nature, Midnight, sold at No. 8 west Thirtieth street, is called the very fast trotting-horse Orbaptism and the Lord's Supper, with a ward at No. 115 east Twenty-second street. The very fast brown gelding Monitor becomes the very fast trotting gelding Royal John; the very fast trotting mare Stella becomes the very handsome sorrel mare Victoria, and the very elegant and fast-trotting gelding Yellow Jacket becomes the very elegant and fast-trotting gelding Regulator.

The legitimate horse auctioneers denounce the swindle in the severest terms, and say "Railroaders" and horses from One of the auctioneers adverhorse was sold by a well-known dealer without a guarantee for $58, and it was purchased by one of the swindlers, who called it Major Allen, and he sold it for $400. chestnut mare three times and realized over Adams, Michigan; James and John Ishil- $800 by the transactions. It was bought by one of Stewart's men for $500, but finding man, Canton, Ohio; Samuel Wilson and J. that he had been duped he took it to a regular auction-house, where it brought $140, Duff being the purchaser, who resold it for Horses bring as high as $1,200 which are not worth more than $150. The purchasers when they find out that they are "stuck" sometimes send them to a regular auction- merry character from the feeling of satisfacroom to be sold on their account, and endeavor to get the swindling auctioneers to pay the difference. The sufferers are mostly countrymen, who think they know a great deal about horse-flesh, and believe they are stealing somebody's trotter when they buy one of the horses put up for sale. A gentleman from Cleveland, stopping at the Fifth-Avenue Hotel, was bitten at one of these sales to the extent of $1,200. He purchased a horse with a fine title, represented to be first class in every respect. On showing it to a friend he was told it was not a fruitless endeavor to get his money back.

A horse was sold at Twenty-second street a few days ago for $230 which, if it had been the real one, would be worth $5,000. Strangers seeing the advertisement with the flowery pedigree, think they have got a prize, and readily buy. Henry Clews's horses are advertised for sale on Twentyseventh street, and not one ever belonged to him. Daniel Drew's horses have been sold twice; and the late E. J. Shandley's horses were advertised for sale last week, when it was well known that the Judge had none.

These auctioneers not only sell horses in this way, but they sell cheap wagons also, on a common wagon and get a big price for it. They buy these wagons at a manufactory in Brooklyn and at Amesbury, Mass., for less than $100. They make a slight change, generally, in the plate to save themselves. Thus R. M. Stivers is changed to B. M. Stivers, J. B. Brewster to J. R. Brewster, Van to Bradley & Pray or Bradley Pray, Dusen-

The "private stables" where these sales of wagons take place are reported to be at and Nineteenth street between Sixth and Seventh avenues. The Carriage Manufacturers' Association will probably take legal means to break up the swindle.

CONDEMNING WRONG, BUT PURSUING IT .-A few days since the sheriff in charge of the Northfield (Minn.) bank-robbers received a letter from a gentleman requesting that the question be asked the robbers whether they had ever attended Sunday school. The letter was given to Cole Younger, the head of the captured band, who replied on a postal card: "I am proud to say to you we were raised by religious parents and attended Sunday school regularly in our boyhood; and, too, had charge of a Bible class while in Texas, at Seyne, Dallas county. I have ever respected Christianity. I have known A similar idea seems to have obtained with the right and endorse it. I condemn the wrong, but yet the wrong pursued."

The festival derives its name from the fact that during its continuance the Israelite is commanded to dwell in tabernacles as a reminder that his ancestors, while in the wilderness after leaving Egypt, dwelt in booths for forty years. This command is literally obeyed by the orthodox Hebrews in foreign countries, many of whom, partioned there were present as representatives The auctioneer Duff is said to have sold a ticularly the wealthier, have booths erected in the gardens or yards in the rear of their dwellings. In this city there will be but few private booths. In New York there is a booth erected for every orthodox synagogue. The Reformed Hebrews do not comply literally with this command, believing it to be inapplicable to their present condition. The Feast of Tabernacles is an autumnal and harvest festival, and takes a pleasant and tion and cheerfulness that naturally is awakened at the ingathering of the crops. The dwelling in the booths ends with the seventh day. On the eighth day prayers are offered for rain and a favorable season. The orthodox have also a ninth day, which they call "Simchath Thorah," or "Rejoicing of the Law." On that day they celebrate the conclusion of the reading of the Pentateuch, which they complete once every year by weekly instalments, read on Saturdays in the synagogues. "Simehath Thorah" is a worth $200, and he became so disgusted day of merriment. The Reform Jews do that he sold it, and went to the auctioneer in not observe it. They finish the Pentateuch only once every three years, reading less and more deliberately on Saturdays. AN APPEAL FROM THE PRESIDENT—A FULL DISPLAY OF VIRGINIA'S PRODUCTS URGED-RESULT OF COLONEL KNIGHT'S VISIT TO THE CENTENNIAL, &c., &c.

THE APPROACHING STATE FAIR.

Colonel W. C. Knight, president of the Virginia State Agricultural Society, has sent us the following letter in relation to the State Fair to be held in Richmond on the 31st of October, 1st, 2d, and 3d of November, with the request that it be published: OFFICE OF STATE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY, ? RICHMOND, October 2, 1876.

To the People of Virginia: The State Agricultural Society, which is your representative institution, so far as your producing interests are concerned, is making every possible effort for the success of the next Fair, commencing on the 31st instant. It is important that there should be a large assemblage of the people and products of the State. We have had no representation at the great International and Centennial Exhibition at Philadelphia, We might, and doubtless would, have gained materially by such a display as the State of Kansas has made there, and which we could have equalled, and even excelled. The remedy may be supplied, and probably more than supplied, by a full display of our products at our capital and at our own exhibition. It is of the utmost importance that we should not neglect our interests at this time. The people of the State should be present at the four schools, giving six rooms and accom-Fair with the best products of their farms, modations for three hundred pupils.
